IGU Archives

After stations in London and Rome, the IGU Archives has a new home at the Leibniz Institute for Regional Geography in Leipzig.

The historic IGU collection is an important source for the history of international geography in the 20th and 21st century. It spans the period 1956 up to the present days; a possible destination of the pre-1956-material is up to now unresolved. Unfortunately, even the existing records have some obvious gaps.

Much of the documents derive from the offices of Secretaries-General and the IGU Presidents. The material has a focus on the Executive Committee, the member countries, on congresses and commissions. IGU Archives is a collection of an international science organization, without a permanent but moving office. The documents represent this vivid history from the 1950s up to now.

Besides the written sources, IGU Archives contains a collection of video documents, mainly the video tapes from the Invitation to Dialogue project. Most of the videos are already online on YouTube and the University College Dublin website.

IGU Archives is open to everybody. Using of the original documents is possible at our institute in Leipzig and requests concerning IGU history are welcome at any time. Access is partly limited by data protection rules or by unfinished archival description.

We are always interested in receiving new relevant and “official” IGU documents (paper, digital and audio-visual), especially publications, minutes, newsletters and reports of commissions and other IGU bodies, and documents related to congresses and IGU projects.
